Windmills in the making...

IF YOU have ever wondered how our hills have come to be covered with those towering wind turbines, here's a clue - pictured just prior to unloading at Kyle, enough blades for another four of the monsters. Good that they are arriving by sea and (fairly) good that we are attempting to end our reliance on fossil fuels, but why spoil our wild spaces with often thoughtless placing?

Crianlarich Hotel

At the midway point on the West Highland Way you deserve a break.

We offer you a warm welcome and excellent facilities. Fully licensed, we are open to non-residents for all meals, we have free WiFi, comfortable log fires, an excellent boot-room and a small but tempting bookshop.

Mountain, moor and sky...

The 96 mile route of the West Highland Way brings some of the most spectacular vistas to be seen in Scotland. The rugged beauty of Rannoch Moor and the mountains that ring it is at its most spectacular when winter dusts the high spots with a coating of snow.

Striking out across Rannoch Moor, away from recognised routes, is not to be recommended. When navvies came to the Highlands to work on hydro schemes and transport routes not a few met their deaths in the dreadful weather that can descend with great rapidity.

Be prepared for bad weather. Go properly attired and equipped.

NOT MANY villages in the UK can boast a working rail station. Even fewer can boast two of them! But Tyndrum has that rare distinction.

Seen above, a (very) rare visit to the lesser of the two – Tyndrum Lower – from a steam excursion en route to Oban. The other, slightly grander station, Upper Tyndrum, has real station buildings and is a stop on the nightly Caledonian Sleeper run.
